Course History

Formerly known as Western Ave golf course, Chester L. Washington golf course was re named after the former publisher of the L.A. SENTINEL NEWSPAPER.

The late and great Bill Spiller was one of the many legendary golfers to play and hang out at the course. Word has it that Bill, Mr. Spiller, was awesome. Charlie Sifford, a legend in his own right, commented about the late Bill Spiller: "He was a great golfer-one of the best, black or white". Bill Spiller was good enough to shoot a 68 and tie Ben Hogan for second place after the first round of the 1948 L.A. Open (one of the few tournaments in the 40's and 50's that ignored the PGA's ban on blacks). The legends at Chester start with a host of great golfers, including Mr. Teddy "Sweet Swing" Rhodes, Madison Gunter, Lee Elder, Charlie Sifford, Calvin Peete and the list goes on.... Chester L. Washington Golf Course has been known to attract great golfers as well as celebrities. Joe Louis was a regular who was seen with Teddy Rhodes as his playing partner on occasion.

When playing the course, watch for the really tough holes. Numbers 7, 9, and 17 are some of the toughest holes in the entire city - bar none! ! If you birdie these holes your payday could be rewarding. What one can say about Chester L. Washington Golf Course is simple - the atmosphere is extremely 'cool' like that. It is a fun and exciting place to play.

Chester L. Washington is partially owned by the American Golf Corporation and a couple of outside partners including Vince

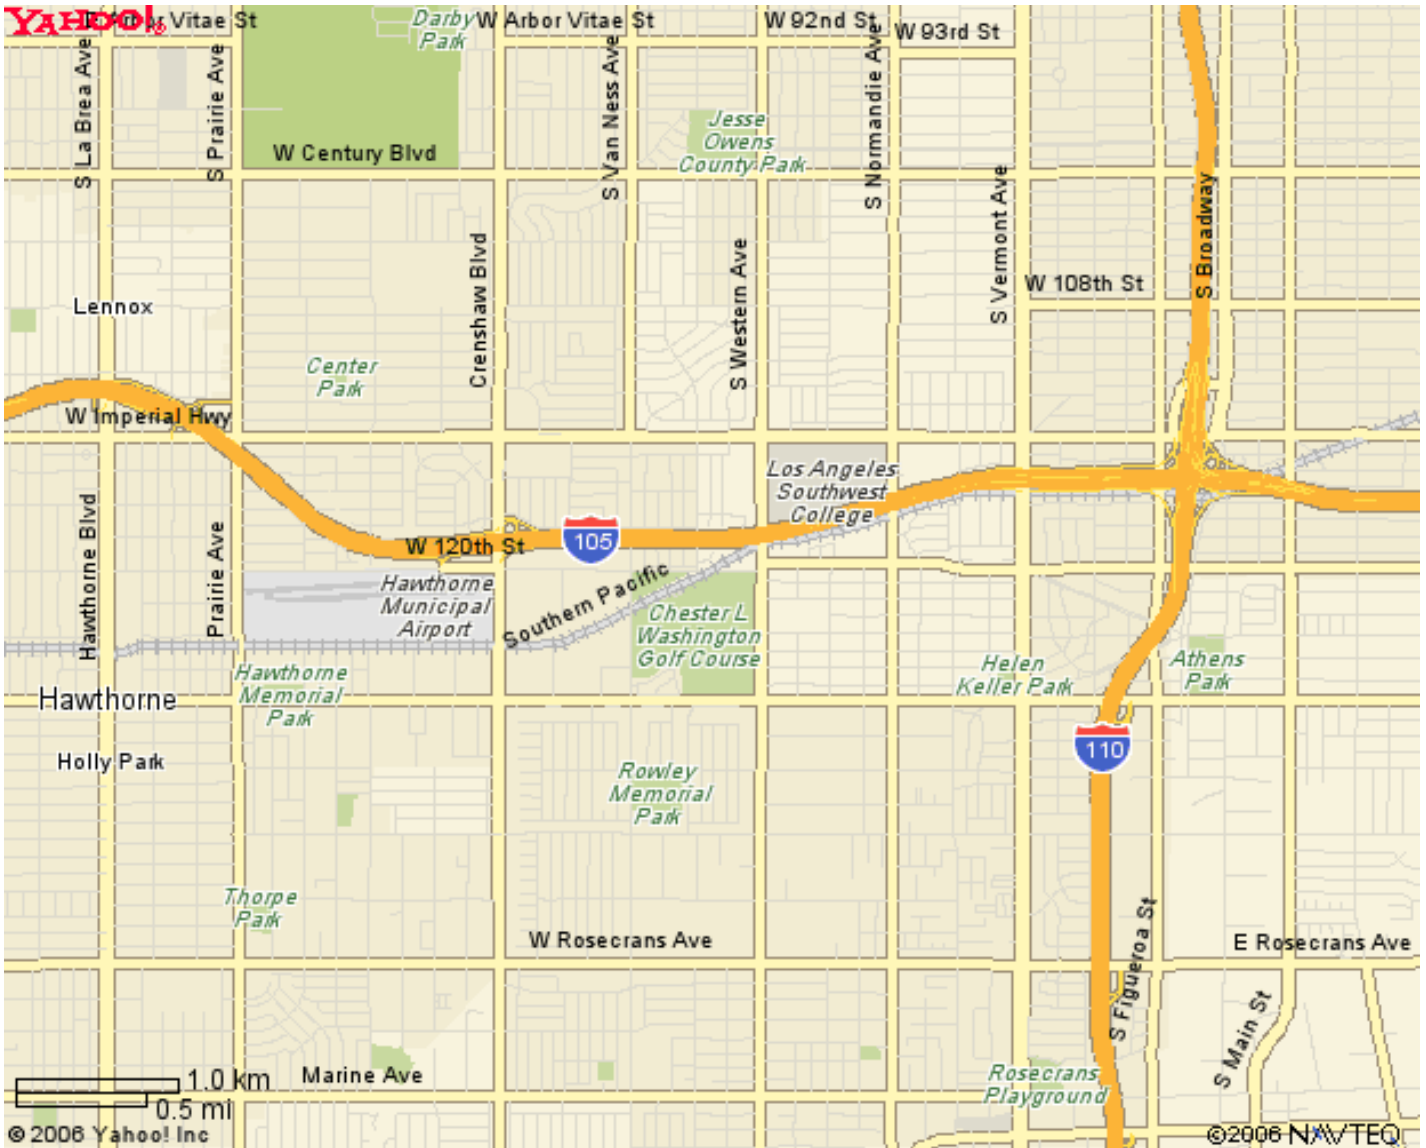

Evans, (the ex-Raider and Chicago Bear), Sidney Williams and Edward K. Waters.
