

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28th

The 2013-2014 Championship Season
continues in Fontana
at
SIERRA LAKES GOLF CLUB

On hole after hole at Sierra Lakes Golf Club, you stand on the tee and feel as if you can reach out and touch those imposing mountains that lie just beyond the green. That's because Sierra Lakes 18 holes, designed by renowned architect Ted Robinson, have been laid out to take full advantage of our site at the foot of the San Bernardino Mountains in Fontana.

Since its' opening in 2000, Sierra Lakes has set a new standard of excellence for public courses in the area. Daily-fee golfers have come to expect outstanding service, meticulous conditions and a challenging round every time they come to spend the day with us.

Robinson is known for his “water” courses, and Sierra Lakes has creeks and lakes along its fairways, however, you also need to be on the watch here for tricky bunkers, rocks and desert brush areas.

There are also a fair number of moguls and little knolls to contend with. “It's an extremely fair course, but it's also a challenging one that we keep in great shape,” says Rick Danruther, director of golf at Sierra Lakes.
