Playing this one from the White Tees, 120 slope

The 18-hole "San Clemente" course at the San Clemente Municipal Golf Course facility in San Clemente, California features 6,447 yards of golf from the longest tees for a par of 72. The course rating is 70.6 and it has a slope rating of 121 on Kikuyu grass. Designed by William P. Bell, ASGCA/(R) William F. Bell, ASGCA, the San Clemente golf course opened in 1928.

This course is one of the finest public courses in the Southern California area. The course was built amid the scenic foothills that overlook the Pacific Ocean.

Additionally, the terrain on this course always slopes toward the ocean, so plan on your putts to break a little more than they seem, giving at least an extra inch to your reads to compensate. The most difficult hole on the course is #16, a 405-yard, par 4, requiring at least a 200 yard tee shot over a barranca and up a sharp-breaking dogleg left fairway with out-of-bounds at the turn. Any well-struck tee shot hit to the right will find itself in play, but an approach shot of over 200 yards will be the result.

The greens on this course are medium-sized, somewhat sloped and medium speed. However, any putt struck directly toward the ocean will have a tendency to be fast. All the fairways are lined by pine and palm trees, plus there is a standard cut of rough to contend with and out-of-bounds areas coming into play on many holes. William F. Bell redesigned his father's layout in 1957.
